

Saddle River, New Jersey, October 2, 2007

FX Solutions (www.fxsof.com), an IT-driven online foreign exchange broker auto-executing almost 99 percent of customer trades*, today announced that it is the Lead Sponsor for FX Week Asia 2007 (www.fxweekasia.com), to be held October 9, 2007. FX Week Asia 2007 features cutting-edge industry developments, showcasing the latest advances in online trading and state-of-the-art trading strategies.

FX Week Asia 2007 brings together over 200 leading banks, brokers, buy-side firms and service providers for a comprehensive agenda specifically tailored to meet the needs of forex industry executives.

Participation in FX Week Asia 2007 comes at a time when FX Solutions is actively expanding its reach into the Far East, largely through white label partnerships with the region's licensed financial service firms. White label partnerships offer firms a low-cost method to accelerate their entry to the fast-growing online forex market. For its white label partners FX Solutions provides a co-branded GTS Pro trading platform environment featuring market data, execution, and risk management tools, as well as, additional support services.

"White label partnerships are built on a basis of shared commitment to offer investors the premier online forex trading experience," said Daniel Darst, Executive Director at FX Solutions. "In addition to our platform, we provide web-based marketing, seminars and customer service, making FX Solutions the top choice of firms wishing to enter the online forex trading arena."

Online retail forex trading has skyrocketed over the last several years. At the end of September 2007, the Bank of International Settlement released its tri-annual updated volume data confirming a tremendous expansion in overall forex volume to $3.2 trillion traded daily.

To give traders faster access to this market, FX Solutions last week released GTS Pro, a new platform that offers an enhanced suite of advanced trading, execution and risk management capabilities.
